David M. Jones

Assistant U.S. Attorney
Office of the U.S. Attorney
New York, New York

Presented to David M. Jones whose ingenuity, resourcefulness, attention to detail and mastery of both the law and the facts of a complicated customs penalty case, United States v. Volkswagen of America, led to a settlement pursuant to which the Government will receive a total of $25 million which according to the Commissioner of Customs makes this the "greatest penalty case in the history of the United States Customs Service."

SUPPORT OF LITIGATION

Mark P. Leddy

Deputy Director of Operations
Antitrust Division

Presented in recognition of his leadership and distinguished service to the Antitrust Division in the support of litigation. He has proven himself to be a versatile, talented, and highly respected career antitrust trial lawyer and litigation manager.

TRIAL OF LITIGATION

Stuart J. Baskin

Assistant U.S. Attorney
Office of the U.S. Attorney
New York, New York

Presented to Mr. Stuart J. Baskin, whose trial skills, ingenuity, dedication to duty and ability to coordinate and present facts developed during a massive investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, six metropolitan police departments, and several foreign countries resulted in the successful prosecution of two criminal cases in which the leaders of a nationwide Croatian terrorist organization were convicted of violations of the RICO statute relating to their participation in a series of murders, bombings, extortions and other terrorist acts.

Katherine P. Ransel

Trial Attorney
Civil Rights Division

Presented in recognition of her professionalism and dedication to duty in the case of United States v. County of Fairfax. Her preparation, advocacy and leadership resulted in success at trial and a decree which guards against future discrimination, provides specific relief to 685 individual victims, and provides vivid warning to other employers of the consequences of discriminatory employment practices.

JAN 25 1983

Assistant Attorney General
Civil Division

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1983

JMD
(202) 633-2009

Attorney General William French Smith today presented awards to 23 Department of Justice employees, an official of the Central Intelligence Agency and a private citizen for outstanding contributions to the work of the Department.

Although most of the 25 recipients of what are known collectively as the Attorney General's Awards were recognized for outstanding performance as administrators or for exceptional legal work, two were cited for acts of bravery.

The awards were presented at the 32nd annual awards ceremony in the Great Hall, the Department's auditorium. More than 100 other Department employees were to receive awards for their achievements at ceremonies held separately in the divisions in which they work.

"The number of awards is not sufficient to match the exemplary performance seen every day in this Department," Attorney General Smith said. "Although improvements can always be made by each of us, the level of performance exhibited by Department employees is very high indeed. For that, I thank each one of you--as do all of the American people."

The Department's highest honor, the Attorney General's Exceptional Service Award, was presented to William L. Colwell, executive assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"He has played a critical role," the Attorney General said, "in the new involvement of the Bureau with the Drug Enforcement Administration--which builds upon DEA's outstanding achievements, but for the first time has brought the expertise and experience of the FBI fully into the fight against drug trafficking.

"He has brought both economy and technology to the FBI. And while he has been instrumental in improving the technical machinery of the Bureau, he has been equally tenacious in improving the quality of life of its people. He cares about the agents and their families and understands the difficulties and hardships of the job--because he has been there."

John W. Black of St. Paul, Minnesota, a private citizen, received the Attorney General's Meritorious Public Service Award for having played a key role in an FBI investigation of corrupt public officials. Black is an area president of ARA Transportation, Inc.

"It is worth repeating," Attorney General Smith said, "that effective law enforcement is not possible without an involved citizenry--and that the citizens of this country contribute daily to the fight against crime--often at great personal risk."

The Attorney General, commenting on the award winners cited for bravery, noted that substantial numbers of Department employees were engaged in work exposing them to great risk.

"This Department is responsible for the domestic defense of our society--and it suffers casualties in the war against crime," Smith said. "By placing their lives at risk, many of our colleagues protect the lives of their fellow citizens--and they deserve added recognition for that very special kind of public service."

One of the employees cited for bravery was Special Agent Kelley D. McCullough of the San Antonio, Texas, field office of the Drug Enforcement Administration. While on a drug investigation in Colombia last February, McCullough and a fellow agent were abducted and shot by several men posing as police officers. Wounded three times and left for dead, McCullough walked three miles to obtain help for his partner.

McCullough was one of the recipients of the Distinguished Service Award, as was the other employee commended for bravery, Special Agent Joseph D. Pistone of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

For six years, Pistone acted in an undercover capacity to penetrate the Bonanno "family," one of the major New York units of the crime syndicate.

His work led not only to indictment of members of the Bonanno family, but of members of other New York families and one in Milwaukee.

While the Attorney General's Awards normally go to Department of Justice employees, Ernest Mayerfeld of the Central Intelligence Agency received the John Marshall Award for Interagency Cooperation in Support of Litigation. The citation noted Mayerfeld's "support for both defensive and affirmative litigation in the area of national security."

Other award recipients were:

Washington, D.C. 20530

DEC 29 1982

Mr. Stanley Sporkin
General Counsel
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Sporkin:

On behalf of the Attorney General and the Department of Justice, I am pleased to inform you that the Attorney General has selected Mr. Ernest Mayerfeld, Deputy General Counsel, Central Intelligence Agency, as the recipient of this year's John Marshall Award for Interagency Cooperation in Support of Litigation. Mr. Mayerfeld was nominated by J. Paul McGrath, Assistant Attorney General, Civil Division, for the outstanding support he has provided to the Department of Justice.

The John Marshall Awards are among the highest forms of recognition granted by this Department and are given in each of six categories of legal endeavor to attorneys who have demonstrated outstanding professional achievement. Mr. Mayerfeld has been selected for the only category of John Marshall Awards granted to attorneys outside the Department. The award recognizes an attorney or group of attorneys of another Federal agency for exceptionally helpful assistance to the Department of Justice in high visibility litigation.

The Award will be presented to Mr. Mayerfeld at the Attorney General's 32nd Annual Awards Ceremony, on Monday, January 17, 1983, at 3 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Department of Justice. I hope that you will join the Attorney General at the ceremony and at the reception for the award recipients and their guests to be held at 2 p.m. in the 1400 corridor of the Department.

The enclosed invitation will admit you to the reception and to the reserved seating section for the ceremony. Entrance to the ceremony should be through the Constitution Avenue entrance located in the center of the Main Justice Building on Constitution Avenue between 9th and 10th Streets.

Please notify Jim Verner, Personnel Staff, Justice Management Division, on 633-4247 if you plan to attend the ceremony and reception.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Kevin D. Rooney". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Kevin" and last name "Rooney" clearly distinguishable.

Kevin D. Rooney
Assistant Attorney General
for Administration
